TRILANTIC Only EU-Based E-Discovery Co. Ranked Top Provider in Socha-Gelbmann Survey

LONDON, (August 14, 2008) – London-based TRILANTIC, the leading EU-based electronic discovery service provider, today announced that it has been named a Top Electronic Discovery Service Provider - Law Firm Rankings, by the highly respected and comprehensive 2008 Socha-Gelbmann Electronic Discovery Survey Report. TRILANTIC is the only EU-based provider to make the list of top 20 providers in the 2008 survey. Full survey results are available via the Socha Consulting Web site (www.sochaconsulting.com/2008survey.php).

As a large number of litigation and regulatory cases being fought in the U.S. have a UK or European dimension, TRILANTIC's experience in Europe and its comprehensive service offering to U.S. clients are particularly strong. This year TRILANTIC added to their Web site the EU Data Protection Rules for data collection and removal for all 27 Member States. In addition, TRILANTIC has established a network of data protection lawyers across Europe to whom clients can be referred for specific matter-related advice.

"It gives me great pleasure to receive this prestigious recognition for the second year running," said TRILANTIC's managing director, Nigel Murray. "This is a significant accomplishment, and it gives me even greater satisfaction that we have been nominated by law firms. This truly demonstrates our commitment to providing the best service to our clients. I'd like to take this opportunity to thank our clients for their support and the TRILANTIC team for their great efforts in providing the level of service our clients require."

The annual Socha-Gelbmann Electronic Discovery Survey Report provides the most comprehensive view into the emerging e-discovery market. Rankings are based on a detailed evaluation of more than 350 qualitative and quantitative factors and comprise data from more than 155 organizations on the forefront of e-discovery,
