Top Industry Experts to Speak at the 2009 LegalTech New York International SuperSession hosted by TRILANTIC

International sessions bring global thought leaders, hot topics and practical advice to one place

LONDON, (January 15, 2009) – London-based TRILANTIC, the leading European Union-based electronic disclosure service provider, today announced the panelists who will be participating in the three educational sessions at the LegalTech New York conference on 3rd February, 2009. TRILANTIC will be hosting the International SuperSession on Tuesday, 3rd February, in the Nassau A Ballroom at the New York Hilton hotel. The international panel of experts will discuss their experiences and offer practical advice regarding international disclosure matters.

10:30 a.m. – 11:45 a.m. - Regulatory Challenges to eDiscovery Around the World (EU, Russia, Middle East & Asia)

Panel Moderator: Browning Marean, Partner, DLA Piper

Panel experts include: Laura Kibbe, Director, e-Discovery Services, Thompson Reuters; Foster Gibbons, Corporate Counsel – In House Discovery, Pfizer; and Madeleine McDonough, Partner, Shook Hardy & Bacon

When planning and executing an international eDisclosure project, local rules and regulations are often not considered until too late. This highly experienced panel will use real-life examples of some of the challenges they have faced when conducting eDisclosure around the world, as well as what to look out for, where to find the right answers and how best to plan for projects which may face diverse rules and regulations.

2:30 p.m. – 3:45 p.m. - International eDiscovery – Perspective from International Firms

Panel Moderator: George I. Rudoy, Director of Global Practice Technology & Information Services, Shearman & Sterling LLP - U.S.

Panel experts include: Vince Neicho, Litigation Support Manager, Allen & Overy - U.K.; Michelle Mahoney, Director, Applied Legal Technology, Mallesons Stephen Jaques – Aus./ Asia; and Florinda Baldrige, Global Head of Practice Support, Fulbright & Jaworski - U.S.

This panel comprises some of the leading figures within Practice Support in the industry, representing some of the largest law firms worldwide. As such, all the panel members have a wealth of knowledge of handling international eDisclosure projects in a great variety of countries around the world. During the session, attendees will learn some best practices for the planning, execution and project management of international eDisclosure, and will take away some of the pitfalls and dangers of running such projects.

4:15 p.m. – 5:30 p.m. - A Shrinking World - International Initiatives in eDiscovery

Panel Moderator: George Socha, Socha Consulting
Panel experts include: Former U.S. Magistrate Judge Ron Hedges, Partner, Nixon Peabody; Chris Dale, Consultant, U.K.-based e-Disclosure Information Project; and Jo Sherman, Advisor to the Australian Courts

The world of eDisclosure is relevant in many jurisdictions around the world and although the new Federal Rules have focused attention on the U.S., there has been, and continues to be, a great deal of activity in other major English-speaking jurisdictions. This panel will describe the various new regulations that have either recently occurred or are planned to happen in the near future within the British, Canadian and Australian legal systems, including an initiative between senior judges from the U.S., U.K., Canada and Australia to learn the best practices from each other's jurisdictions.

"I am delighted that our panels include the true experts in this industry—individuals who handle international issues on a daily basis and who are responsible for guiding our rule makers, judges, attorneys and clients to adopt and adapt the rules to cater for this ever-changing world of eDisclosure. All the panelists work for firms and corporations who look at business from a global perspective. I am very grateful to them all for their generosity in giving their time to both attend these sessions and to pass on their knowledge to a wider audience," said Nigel Murray, TRILANTIC's Managing Director.
