TRILANTIC Hosts International E-Disclosure Super Sessions at 2009 LegalTech New York

European International E-Discovery Leader and U.S. E-Disclosure Industry Experts Come Together to Educate on International Disclosure Matters

LONDON, (January 5, 2009) – London-based TRILANTIC, the leading European Union-based electronic disclosure service provider, today announced that they will be hosting three educational sessions related to international disclosure at the LegalTech New York conference on February 3, 2009. The panels will include industry-leading individuals in the international eDisclosure field and will be moderated by esteemed industry experts Browning Mearns of DLA Piper, George Socha of Socha Consulting and George Rudoy of Shearman & Sterling.

TRILANTIC offers comprehensive services that are unique in the European market and the sessions will encompass their experience of international eDisclosure from the perspective of international law firms, regulatory challenges to eDisclosure with a focus on the EU, Russia, Middle East and Asia, and non-English language document collections.

LegalTech New York will take place at the New York Hilton, 2nd-4th February. LegalTech is the largest legal technology event of the year. For more than two decades, LegalTech has provided law firms and legal departments an educational in-depth look at what the technological world has in store by offering more than 50 educational tracks, renowned industry speakers and more than 200 legal vendors. For more information, visit www.legaltechshow.com.

“Once again I thank the organisers of LegalTech for allowing TRILANTIC to lay on a day of sessions focused on international eDisclosure. With the three panels of experts that we have speaking at these sessions, I am very confident that all attendees will find the sessions useful, interesting and hopefully amusing,” said Nigel Murray, TRILANTIC’s managing director.

The EU Data Protection Rules for data collection and removal for all 27 Member States is available for download on the TRILANTIC Web site. In addition, they have established a network of data protection lawyers across Europe to whom clients can be referred for specific matter-related advice. TRILANTIC recently joined Nexidia's partnership program which offers audio discovery services in a familiar review environment to law firms and legal departments handling matters in the EU. TRILANTIC is recognised as a Top Electronic Discovery Service Provider by the 2008 Socha-Gelbmann Electronic Discovery Survey Report.

To set up a meeting with Nigel Murray or David Mattera during LegalTech New York, please call David Mattera on +1 212- 808-7227. Mattera, director of sales for the U.S., is the facilitator for U.S. corporations, law firms and service bureaus with projects that are either EU-centric or start in the U.S. and have EU components.
