TRILANTIC Announce Groundbreaking Initiative: Cost effective and simple to use email analysis and processing tool now available for use by law firms

Simple web download enables fee-earners to analyse and process email inboxes for e-discovery purposes; with no initial cost.

London October 10th 2007- TRILANTIC, a leading provider of European e-disclosure services, is offering Trident, in partnership with Wave Software, an innovator in the analysis and processing of email files. This software allows users to analyse the contents of client email boxes, determine what needs to be processed, then key word search and de-duplicate the mails according to criteria relevant to the matter. The analysis tool is free for all to use, and after an initial free 5 Gb of data, the cost of the software is £300 plus £86 per Gb processed.

Recognising the time and confidentiality pressures of litigation situations, TRILANTIC wanted to provide firms with the ability to analyse and de-duplicate the content of individual email inboxes by lawyers at anytime. Based on Wave Software's award winning Trident product, TRILANTIC now provides the software, downloadable from its website. Emails in all languages can be analysed and processed without leaving the law firm, quickly and with no training, breaking the usual constraints of time, money, and the need for external expertise.

"As litigation is a 24/7 practice area, there may be occasions where a firm receives critical data on a Friday afternoon, it needs to be reviewed over the weekend and there simply isn't the time to send this out to an external party for processing. Trident allows law firms to manage this quickly and without compromising client confidentiality" commented Nigel Murray, Managing Director of TRILANTIC "Trident provides the tools to analyse, de-dupe and filter email inboxes from multiple source at great speed. For approximately £86 Trident can process a gigabyte of information in around 10 minutes without sacrificing accuracy"

Available now from http://www.TRILANTIC.co.uk/services/wave_software.html; Trident provides the following features:

- Fast and flexible Email de-duplication across multiple Outlook or Lotus notes files
- Keyword and Date Range Filtering
- Processing of foreign language emails
- Superior logging and reporting capabilities
- The ability to import Messages from MSG files, multiple folders or from multiple custodians
- The ability to export Messages in format of choice and filtered by interest

“Law firms are increasingly exploring more time and cost-efficient options in light of the growth of data discovery,” states Robert Childress, president of Wave Software. “With the increased cost pressures clients face, everyone, from those who lead litigation teams to litigation support staff, are seeking more sensible methods of managing data around e-discovery and e-disclosure. This initiative with TRILANTIC, combines the benefits of our unique software with TRILANTIC’s service to provide a unique and inclusive way for litigation professionals across the globe to save time and costs.”
